Science - Glencoe
Life science is the scientific study of life or all living organisms while physical science is the study of non-living organisms. Life sciences involve the study of humans, animals, and plants. However, psychology which studies the behavioral aspects of living organisms is also under life science because it also involves biological instances and aspects of these organisms to explain such phenomena.

Difference Between Life Science and Physical Science ...
Studies in the physical sciences also lead to life science programs such as medicine, dentistry, physical therapy and pharmacy, as well as astronomy, meteorology, geology, and environmental chemistry. The Associate of Science degree is offered to in chemistry, engineering and physics.
