~~New Oxford History of England. The aim of the New Oxford History of England is to give an account of the development of the country over time. It is hard to treat that development as just the history which unfolds within the precise boundaries of England, and a mistake to suggest that this implies a neglect of the histories of the Scots, Irish, and Welsh.~~

This would put the origins of Oxford at between 1400-1500 BCE. Mempricius' city was known by a variety of names before the Saxon "Oxenfordia" took hold. Other medieval historians upheld a popular legend that Oxford was founded by the Trojans, who were supposed to have landed in Britain in about 1100 BCE.

The history of Oxford in England dates back to its original settlement in the Saxon period. Originally of strategic significance due to its controlling location on the upper reaches of the River Thames at its junction with the River Cherwell, the town grew in national importance during the early Norman period, and in the late 12th century became home to the fledgling University of Oxford.
